DPT Laboratories Names JJ Feik Senior Director, Business Development

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS – DPT Laboratories, Ltd., a pharmaceutical contract development and manufacturing organization, announced today that JJ Feik has been promoted to senior director of business development.

In his new role, Feik will lead the business development team. Feik has gained a broad understanding of the company by serving in a range of roles over the years. He was a business development manager at DPT before serving in his previous role as director of Marketing and Corporate Development. DPT and its parent company, DFB, have taken him to several locations and assignments in the United States, including New Orleans, Fort Worth, Phoenix and San Antonio.

“As business development director, JJ’s leadership skills and sales experience will be instrumental in growing DPT now and in the future,” said Paul Josephs, vice president of sales and marketing.

Feik holds a bachelor’s of Business Administration in Marketing from The University of the Incarnate Word and has attended continuing educational courses through Southern Methodist University and Pepperdine University. He has also attended The Center for Creative Leadership in Colorado Springs, Colo. and is a graduate of Leadership San Antonio.

Feik, wife Tracee and their two daughters are actively involved in the community. Feik has served as president of the board of the Founder’s Council benefiting the Southwest Foundation for Biomedical Research, trustee for the Witte Museum of Science and Natural History and as a development board member for The University of the Incarnate Word.

“This is an exciting time for DPT and I look forward to the opportunity to draw from my background in sales and marketing to lead business development activities,” Feik said.
